

WANTS TO MARRY ELLEN M. STONE

Peka Paska, Chief of the Captors, Falls in Love with Her.

IS URGING HIS SUIT

Detaining the Missionary at His Home in Hopes That She Will Relent.

DICKINSON IS ACTIVE

London, Nov. 20.—A Balziel, Sofia, dispatch says a Macedonian priest has reported that Peka Pasha, chief of Miss Stone's captors, is enamored of the handsome missionary and wants to marry her. Miss Stone declines all advances, but Peka Pasha is detaining her at his home hoping she will relent.

Dickinson Wants Troops Sofia, Nov. 20.—It is reported that Mr. Dickinson, the United States diplomatic agent here, has informed the government of Bulgaria that the abductors of Miss Ellen M. Stone and Miss Talika, with their captives, are concealed in a defile of the Belitza Mountains, near Smotchi district of Dubnitza, and has requested that troops be sent to surround the place and liberate the captives.

Both Mr. Dickinson and the Bulgarian foreign office decline to confirm or deny this report. Nevertheless, it is believed that Mr. Dickinson, persuaded by the impossibility of coming to terms with the brigands, and relying upon his belief that they will not harm their captives if troops are employed against them, has, after consulting with Washington, decided upon this move.

Only eight brigands now guard Miss Stone and some of these are known to sympathize with her.

About a fortnight ago Mr. Dickinson approached the foreign office and proposed the same plan but its carrying out was abandoned because of the uncertainty of the location of the bandits.

The story is causing intense indignation in Dutch court circles where it is given full credence.

WEAVING A MESH FOR SHERWELL; WAS SEEN WITH MURDERED WOMAN

Circumstantial Chain Against Evansville Policeman Now Nearly Complete—Wife Makes Admissions.

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 20.—Startling developments against the prisoner, Sherwell, were unearthed today. As the matter now stands the murders were committed by the same man or men. The identity of the second man is not known.

A creditable witness, whose name Coroner Walker will not yet make public, has been found who saw Sherwell drive up to Eighth and Sycamore streets on the night of the double murder. With him was a man and woman sitting in the back seat of the surrey. They all got out and walked half a block to the brick flat in which Lena Renner lived. They went in the back way and soon came out. This time the policeman was accompanied by a woman, presumably Lena Renner.

They got in the surrey and drove through the alley towards the main street. These facts today further connect Sherwell with the murder.

Mrs. Sherwell made damaging admissions today. To Detectives Hutch-

CRASH IN A DENSE FOG.

Many Trains on Chicago Elevated Roads in Collision.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Death and destruction lurked in the heavy mist which hid the sun in the early morning. The fog came upon the crowds of men and women hurrying to their daily work without warning and fell heavily among the patrons of the "L" roads. Two men were killed, more than a score of persons were injured and hundreds more were slashed by flying glass or battered by crashing wood-work—the result of accidents. At least nine collisions occurred on the "L" structures, three on railroads and one on a surface line, aside from many accidents here and there about the city.

The killed: THOMAS MEENEY 18 years old, 213 North Wood street, standing on platform of Metropolitan train when it was telescoped.

EPOCH IN HISTORY OF ASTRONOMY; FIRST PROOF OF NEBULAR THEORY

Momentous Discovery Made by Prof. Ritchey at the Yerkes Observatory—Photographs Give Positive Evidence of Evolution in Universe.

Williams Bay, Wis., Nov. 20.—Professor G. W. Ritchey of the Yerkes Observatory has made a discovery of startling significance and tremendous importance in the history of the evolution of the universe.

In effect the brilliant astronomer has just finished observations which prove the truth of the celebrated nebular theory of creation announced by the famous Frenchman, La Place, and of the widely different belief that the solar system, and even the star clusters, have been formed by millions of years of slow evolution from great bodies of gaseous matter floating in the inconceivable abysses of space.

Changes Are Rapid Professor Ritchey's observations go even farther than this. They go to show the truth of the theory of Herbert Spencer that the entire universe is passing through a flux of evolution and dissolution—that nebular gas itself is developed by mighty changes in the stars themselves—that stars are suddenly expanded by explosion or otherwise, into enormous masses of thin gas, infinitely more tenuous than atmospheric air, and that this gas again contracts and is converted into suns like our own, with probably trains of attendant planets.

In short Professor Ritchey has proved that a nebula, with a star for a nucleus, changes its shape and the quantity of light it emits, and that these changes are so rapid as to be observable within the compass of a few hours.

Credit to Discoverer This is one of the greatest discoveries in the history of astronomy and Professor Ritchey alone deserves the credit.

Astronomers have long believed that the nebulae—those great masses of luminous gas existing through space at incalculable distances from the earth—were the matrices of solar systems and star clusters like our own. But no observer had been able to see the slightest sign of change in the structure. Of course, it has been believed that here must be but no astronomer has been able to prove the fact. This has now been done by Professor Ritchey, and that highly original scientist is now busily engaged in preparing for the technical journals an announcement of his discovery.

MESSAGE IS READ TO THE CABINET; DOCUMENT HAS ABOUT 25,000 WORDS

President Roosevelt's Advisers Give a Full Endorsement to the Policy He Has Outlined.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—President Roosevelt read his message to the members of the cabinet at the regular meeting of his advisers yesterday afternoon. The entire session was devoted to the reading of this document, which is quite long and, according to the members of the cabinet, is an able, straight-forward message and one that will please the people and meet with their approval.

The president read the message himself and paused frequently to comment upon it and ask the opinion of the members of the cabinet. These interjections of President Roosevelt were of the utmost frankness. The cabinet members endorsed the message as it was written and told the president it met with their unqualified approval.

It has been said that the message would be rather brief, but it positively known that it consists of not less than 25,000 words. It required nearly three hours to read and discuss it, the cabinet being in regular session from 11 o'clock, the regular hour of meeting, until 1:30 o'clock.

Naturally the cabinet officers would not discuss any specific points in the message, but it is known that the president handles all subjects with which he deals in a characteristic manner, and when it is published it will furnish interesting as well as forcible reading for the public.

While the message is practically completed, there yet remain a few finishing touches to be added, when it will be sent to the printing office and printed in pamphlet form, ready to be submitted to congress when that body convenes. The message is already in proof form. A printed copy will not be read in the two branches of congress, however, as the general custom of reading from the manuscript will be followed.

The members of the cabinet decline to say whether or not the president makes many specific recommendations or whether they are of a general character.

WEAR COWBELLS ON THEIR NECKS

Scheme of Lumber Jacks to Avoid Bullets of Deer Hunters.

THE HUNTERS BUSY

State License Law Fails to Retard the Slaughter of the Deer.

DRAWING TO A CLOSE

Eagle River, Wis., Nov. 20.—The published reports to the effect that the $25 license fee charged non-resident hunters would have the result of greatly curtailing the annual deer slaughter does not seem to be borne out by information reaching here from every section of Northern Wisconsin. The killing is not curtailed and it is no exaggeration to state that it is showing an increase over last year's unprecedented record. The non-residents who come to Wisconsin have been men who came for the sport of hunting, not for pot hunting purposes, and have been men to whom the payment of almost any reasonable fee is immaterial.

That portion of the game law which prohibits the sale of venison is also said to be, if not a dead letter, equally inadequate in cutting down the slaughter.

This season there are not only more local nmrods in pursuit of game, but the hunters from various other sections are largely in excess of last year, according to returns by the railroads which have handled the parties and their baggage.

In Oneida, Price and Vilas counties alone is estimated there are several thousand outside hunters, while the woods in other counties in the northern part of this state and Michigan are alive with hunters.

The deer killed by these hunters number hundreds daily, and with those sent in by the local nmrods the express companies and liveries are kept busy handling the carcasses. The number of does being brought in is in excess of the bucks, and the rule probably holds good in other sections, since to stalk and kill a male deer is the harder.

So far this season the flat of hunting fatalities—that is, where men have been mistaken for deer and shot—has been remarkably small despite that there are more nmrods in the woods than ever before. So many cases have occurred in the past years that the taking of precautions has been stimulated. Landlookers and lumberjacks have gone into the woods wearing cowbells around their necks.

The record up to date stands as follows: Number of hunters missing, 2; number of hunters dead, 12; number of hunters wounded, 19. Total, 33.

THE MILLIONAIRES WHO LIVE IN FLATS

VERY EXPENSIVE APARTMENT HOUSES IN NEW YORK.

Comforts of a Five-Million Dollar Flat-House with 1,800 Rooms—Housekeeping Made Easy—New York Flats Are Better Than Those of Paris.

The increase in size and number of apartment houses in large cities of late has been beyond all precedent, says the New York Sun. A single apartment house is being built in New York at a cost of $5,000,000, which will contain 1,800 rooms.

It is possible here to secure rooms on the same plane, suited to every purpose of housekeeping from a kitchen to a bathroom. The various apartments are so arranged that any number of rooms can be thrown into a single suite, the position of the rooms being left to the tenant.

The rentals for single apartments vary from $2,000 to $20,000 yearly. Now these rentals are higher than those of most private houses in New York. The preference of flats, even at increased rentals is due, doubtless, to their greater convenience.

Every feature to be found in the finest dwellings is duplicated in these apartments with the important exception of the stairs. The suites vary in size from six to thirty rooms. The best apartments contain from two to five bathrooms with special quarters for servants.

The rooms are heated in winter with hot air and cooled in summer with refrigerated draughts. Hot or cold or iced water, each filtered, is supplied to every room. By living in an up-to-date apartment, in short, a housekeeper can save everything but money.

Not only does the economy of labor in housekeeping attract residents but the apartment houses, by their lavishly decorated, airy, bright and the architecture of these great buildings, their entrances and halls, are far more elaborate than any single tenant could afford in a house of his own.

In other words, a man who pays $10,000 a year rent for a flat has the satisfaction of entering a hallway as elaborate as that of many European palaces. Several of the apartment houses in New York for instance have plate glass doors covered with bronze scroll work valued at $5,000 a panel. The hallway of one apartment house contains several ornate lounges costing $1,400 each.

Perhaps the most important feature of this modern form of living is economy of time and patience which has been made possible in housekeeping. A good one-third of the drudgery of house care is performed by machinery. The heat is supplied from the cellar and can be regulated to a degree.

The foods are preserved in porcelain refrigerators cooled by cold brine, which can be turned on or off by an ordinary spigot. If ice be desired the cold brine is merely turned on full head for a few minutes and zero temperature is produced though it is the hottest of summer days.

Electricity has entirely superseded gas for illumination. Each apartment has, besides a telephone of its own, and the hostess talks with her cook from any room or with a friend a thousand miles away with equal facility.

To an outsider the most interesting part of one of these mammoth apartment houses is the cellar. It is here that the greater part of the housekeeping is performed. These cellars resemble nothing so much as the hold of an ocean liner. They are crowded with complicated machinery, attended by scores of engineers and electricians.

It must be remembered that the heat light and general convenience of living rooms are controlled from this center. And the tenants who pay thousands a year for their suites are very intolerant of any neglect.

The bulkier equipment of these cellars is the complicated system of Catarh has become such a common disease that a person entirely free from this disgusting complaint is seldom met with. It is customary to speak of Catarh as nothing more serious than a bad cold, a simple inflammation of the nose and throat. It is, in fact, a complicated and very dangerous disease; if not at first, it very soon becomes so.

The blood is quickly contaminated by the foul secretions, and the poison through the general circulation is carried to all parts of the system.

Salves, washes and sprays are unsatisfactory and disappointing, because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. does. It cleanses the blood of the poison and eliminates from the system all catarrhal secretions, and thus cures thoroughly and permanently the worst cases.

Mr. T. A. Williams, a leading dry-goods merchant of Spartanburg, S. C., writes: "For years I had a severe case of nasal catarrh, with all the disagreeable effects which belong to that disease, and which make life painful and unendurable. I tried all the medicines prescribed by leading physicians and suggested by numbers of friends, but without getting any better. I then began to take S. S. S. It had the desired effect, and cured me after taking eighteen bottles. In my opinion S. S. S. is the only medicine now in use that will effect a permanent cure of catarrh."

SSS is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known, and the greatest of all blood medicines and tonics.

If you have catarrh don't wait until it becomes deep-seated and chronic, but begin at once the use of S. S. S., and send for our book on Blood and Skin Diseases and write our physicians about your case.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

pumps and engines used for forcing the water of various temperatures to the apartments. Every well regulated apartment house cellar is supplied with enormous filters, which clarify all the water used throughout the building. The water is then heated or cooled as the case may be before passing it to the pumps.

There are house pumps for the ordinary hot and cold water, brine pumps for the freezing apparatus, and still others for the ice water and the very hot water which heats the great buildings. The temperature of all these systems of piping must be controlled to a degree, or endless inconvenience will follow.

Each cellar has besides two complete electric plants, with complicated switchboards and buzzing dynamos.

The cellar proper has beside a number of brick walled rooms, one corresponding to each flat, where tenants may store bicycles, trunks, baby carriages and similar accumulations. These cellars are fire-proof and are lighted by electricity.

Still another feature of the newer apartment houses are public laundries. Each tenant has a stationary tub in the cellar with an approved rack for clothes which are dried by hot air blasts.

The cellar door is the back door of the apartment. The servants and tradespeople first enter the cellar and then proceed to the apartments by special freight elevators. In some apartment houses the freight elevators are so large that a loaded furniture van may be hoisted to the upper floors intact there to be unloaded.

Fireproof arrangements are as complete as it is possible to make them. The floors and walls throughout are built of brick and cement. The staircase and elevator shafts are constructed entirely of metal and stone or cement. The floors of the rooms are merely covered with thin layers of wood.

The day of the bell rope and speaking tube is past. The best apartments are provided with individual telephone systems connecting the various rooms one with another. The dining rooms are besides provided with burglar and fire-proof safes, built securely in the walls or floors for storing silverware or other valuables. Still another luxury is the mail tube. The apartment houses in New York are the finest in the world. To appreciate their various refinements they should be compared with the best apartments in London or Paris.

PROF. D. D. MAYNE MAY BE HONORED

Ex-Supt. of Janesville Public Schools Suggested as President of State Teachers.

The announcement that here is agitation among the educational leaders of the state for the selection of R. H. Halsey, president of the Oshkosh Normal school, for the presidency of the State Teachers' association, has brought out the fact that there are other candidates who are likely to enter the field for the place.

Thus, while it may be without his personal knowledge, there has been considerable talk among his friends of supporting Prof. George F. Cary, the superintendent of the State School for the Deaf at Delavan, for the place; while Prof. Mayne, of Janesville, also has been mentioned as a possible candidate. It is not likely that either of these men will be in the field if Prof. Halsey decides to run.

If Mr. Halsey does not enter the race there may be a number of candidates, as it is said the county superintendents of the state would like to have one of their number elected as president of the association, and that they may decide to put a ticket in the field on the ground that whoever is elected to the presidency of the association should be in touch with the country school situation in the state.

Their plea will be that for the last few years the great object of the association's work has been to get into closer touch with the country schools, and they claim to know of no way in which this can be done than by the selection of a president of the association who has the direct superintendency of country schools. While she is not a country school superintendent the school men from the interior counties of the state would probably have to go a long way before they could find a more popular candidate to head their ticket than Miss Elizabeth Allen of the Dunn county training school for teachers.

WAR ON MUSIC OF RAGTIME VARIETY

American Federation of Musicians Out with an Appeal Against This Form of Melody.

Music of the ragtime variety is under fire and a concerted action on the part of all unions of the American Federation of Musicians has been called for by the Chicago Federation. War to the knife will be waged until the composition that has been so popular since the world's fair is annihilated.

Ragtime has been tried, the musicians say, and found wanting. It has been found to conflict with morals and good musical theory and practice. Musicians are enraged over its despotic reign and the pulpits has pronounced it immoral. Yesterday a mail was sent out from the Chicago Federation of Musicians which asks for the united effort of all musicians in the United States for the suppression of this prevalent popular music.

Ragtime music had its origin in the midwest dance, which was first introduced to Americans at the world's fair. It savors somewhat of the weird oriental chant and of the negro hoodlums characteristic of savages. But it was something new and the public took an interest in it. The subject was discussed at much length by the musical world. Many declared that it was not legitimate music at all. Still the composers of "coon songs" and dance music indulged in it to such an extent that the public was left the choice of taking ragtime or no popular music at all.

From the very first real musicians rebelled against ragtime. It is hard to play one until one falls into the popular rhythm. Then it becomes a part of itself and the musician finds it hard to break away and return to legitimate music. Then, too, men who had formerly composed good music, degenerated into ragtime. Both players and composers became careless, and, it is said, the quality of both execution and composition has degenerated to a dangerously noticeable extent. As a natural result, musicians say, the taste of the public has fallen to such a low grade that nothing short of an erratic ragtime suits them. The classics have to suffer.

What had long been claimed by musicians, and especially to those who furnished music to dances, recently dawned on the ministry and other preachers of good morals who said ragtime is "immoral, obscene, degrading and unworthy of production." Rev. Robert A. Hollan, of St. Louis, said in a recent lecture that ragtime had the above noted attributes and that "it comes from the animal in man and to that animal it appeals. It is the measure and motion of the cakewalk. It is the music of the beer garden and it smells of sour beer and poor whiskey."

Musicians who play for dances vouch for the statement that ragtime appeals to the animal in man. The gliding dances and two-step are outgrowths of ragtime, they say. Ragtime is too blame for this degeneration among dancers, according to musicians, although it is not especially on the ground of morality that musicians ask the annihilation of the cakewalk sort of music.

"I suppose he has done it every morning for the last ten years, uncle," replied Henry.

"Has he lived there all that time?" "Yes, and longer than that, for all I know. I've been here only ten years myself."

"Who is he?" "I don't know." "What does he follow?" "I haven't the slightest idea uncle." Uncle Amos put on his hat and went out. In an hour or two he returned. "Henry," he said, "that chap's name is Horton. He runs an insurance office down town. He's worth about $27,000, owns that house an' lot, belongs to the Presbyterian Church, has three boys an' one girl, an' he's 46 years old. THE OLD WAY

Of Treating Stomach Trouble and Indigestion a Barbarous and useless One

We say the old way, but really it is the common and usual one at the present time and many dyspeptics and physicians as well, consider the first step in attempting to cure indigestion is to diet, either by selecting certain food and rejecting others or to greatly diminish the quantity of food usually taken.

In other words, the starvation plan is supposed by many to be the first essential in the cure of weak digestion.

The almost certain failure of the starvation cure for stomach trouble has been proven time and again, but still the usual advice, when dyspepsia makes its appearance, is a course of dieting.

All this is radically wrong. It is foolish and unscientific to recommend dieting or starvation to a person suffering from dyspepsia because indigestion itself starves every organ and every nerve fibre in the body.

What is needed is abundant nutrition, not less, and this means plenty of good, wholesome, well-cooked food and some natural digestive to assist the weak stomach to digest it.

That is exactly the purpose for which Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are adapted and this is the way they cure the worst cases of stomach trouble.

The patient eats plenty of wholesome food, and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digest it for him.

And this is in accordance with nature and common sense because in this way the whole system is nourished and the overworked stomach rested, because the tablets will digest the food, whether the stomach works or not. One of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 1899 grains of meat, eggs and similar food.

Any druggist will tell you that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is a remedy of extraordinary value and probably is the purest and safest remedy for stomach troubles.

No person suffering from poor digestion and lack of appetite can fail to be immediately and permanently benefited if they would make it a practice to take one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal.

ANNUAL BANQUET OF BIBLE CLASS

One of the Most Pleasant Gatherings Ever Held—Two-Course Supper, and Good Program.

The second annual banquet of the young men's Bible class of the Baptist church was held last evening at the church parlors. It was one of the most pleasant gatherings in the history of the class and will always be remembered by them. A two course supper had been prepared by the ladies of the helpful circle, who saw that their guests were well taken care of and had all they desired.

After the banquet was finished a splendid literary and musical program was carried out. J. C. Stanton acted as toastmaster. The program was as follows: Rummage, J. T. Fitchett, Major and Minor, F. E. Sadler, Time's garden, J. S. Taylor, Violin obligato, Mr. Halverson. Bower City on the rock, Morris Erickson, Cradle Song, Oscar Halverson. How B. F. Dunwiddle.

In the absence of Judge Dunwiddle his paper was presented by R. H. Grove. Miss Elva Crawford acted as accompanist for J. S. Taylor and also for Oscar Halverson. Greetings were read from Rev. Vaughan, pastor of the church, who was unable to be present and from J. Walter Clark, a former member of the class now at Hillsboro, Ill. The evening's festivities concluded with the singing of an anatomy card containing twenty-five sentences pertaining to the different parts of the body. This made great fun and was one of the enjoyable features of the evening.

For Over Fifty Years.

Mr. Winstow's SCOTCH WHISKY has been used for children while teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Sold by druggists throughout the whole world.

PHILOSOPHY OF THE STREET The man who really wants to please a woman should keep her guessing. If doors were intended for educators in habits of thoughtfulness, they still have lots of work to do.

If you want to be benevolent, help your fellows as you go along, instead of waiting until you leave what you cannot take with you.

If women were not so unduly enthusiastic over small matters, there would not be so many nervous wrecks. One reason why men lose their reputation as prophets is that they are apt to express their wishes instead of their convictions.—Milwaukee Journal.

WILL BACK CAUSE OF THE TRANSVAAL

Monster Mass Meeting Will Be Held in Chicago Dec. 8—Bourke Cock-ran Will Be the Speaker.

The monster mass meeting to be held at the Auditorium, Chicago, on December 8th, under the auspices of the Chicago Branch of the American Transvaal League, at which the eloquent Cockran will be the speaker, promises to assume national proportions and to have far-reaching results. The committee on resolutions which consists of Ex-Judge Moran, Dr. Hiram W. Thomas, Sigmund Zeller and F. J. Loesch, will submit resolutions asking President Roosevelt to take immediate steps to stop the shipping of horses and mules from New Orleans to Cape Town, to be used by the British forces in South Africa, calling attention to the treaty of Washington, between the United States and Great Britain, dated May 8, 1871, which provides that "a neutral government is bound not to permit or suffer either belligerent to make use of its ports or waters as the base of naval operations against the other or for the purpose of military renewal or augmentation of military supplies and arms, or recruitment of men," and also calling attention to the proclamation of Queen Victoria, dated April 26, 1893, referring to this provision and calling for its strict enforcement during the pendency of the war between the United States and Spain.

The president will also be reminded of the unspeakable condition of British concentration camps in South Africa, where the death rate is 370 per annum, per 1,000, as shown in the following editorial taken from the "Manchester Guardian" of September 4, 1901:

"The annual death rate among the children in the Transvaal camps is about 370 per 1,000. In less than three years, if the war goes on and the camps remain as deadly to their inmates, everyone of these babies, our prisoners, will be dead. The death rate for men, women and children in these Transvaal camps was at the annual rate of 210 per 1,000. That is to say, if the present arrangements were maintained for five years, every Boer inmate of the camps, man, woman and child, would be dead. There is no parallel in history, as far as we know, to this process of extermination, steadily continued month after month, in which the enemy's casualties in the field seem likely to be completely eclipsed by the holocaust of women and infants."

Bubonic Plague Kills 280.
Norfolk, Va., Nov. 20.—The British steamer Monmouth, Captain Troop, which arrived here direct from Cape Town, South Africa, reports the existence of over 800 cases of bubonic plague in the vicinity of Cape Town when she left that port. Up to the time she sailed over 350 deaths from the plague had occurred.

In Pudd'nhead Wilson there is a delightful lesson taught. The man of maxima of Dawson's Landing is one of the most delightful creations the literary or theatrical world has ever known and the lesson the story teaches should be taken to heart, nurtured and preserved through all time. Boy Blown to Pieces.

Alexandria, Ind., Nov. 20.—Charles Ott, a 13-year-old boy, was blown to atoms in the evening in a peculiar manner. The little boy found a tin nitroglycerin can in the rear of his home and tying it about his waist he proceeded to beat a merry tattoo on his improvised drum. A terrible explosion which shook the city followed. Frightened neighbors rushed to the scene and found the child dead. The can had been left by well shooters two weeks ago and it was supposed that not enough of the deadly explosive remained to be dangerous.

Brooklyn Postmaster Out.

New York, Nov. 20.—A dispatch from Washington says that Postmaster Wilson of Brooklyn has resigned. The cause of his resignation is a controversy between Mr. Wilson and one of the assistant postmasters general over an employee in the Brooklyn postoffice. Mr. Wilson wanted to remove this man, but this contemplated action was not acceptable to the assistant postmaster general. The resignation is said to have been accepted by President Roosevelt, who is now considering the appointment of his successor.

Ryder, vice-president of the Chicago & Grand Rapids railway, who alleges he lost $50,000. A report was current that Cass has not accounted for $500,000, but it is said much of this is outlawed. Cass is a former member of the Chicago Bar association. He is said to be in Pittsburgh.

American minstrels was the Moor of Venice, but it is doubtful if the race would have been created had it not been for the introduction of negro slavery into this country. In the nearly three-quarters of a century of its history, American minstrelsy has passed through many changes, starting with its close imitation of plantation life, passing into a travesty on the real negro degenerating into a Plan to Take Capitol Site.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 20.—Quiet preparations are being made by the heirs of Charles Bazille, a pioneer settler of St. Paul, to take possession of the old capitol building, site and all, as soon as the state offices are removed to the new structure. The action is planned on the ground that Mr. Bazille, in presenting the capitol square to the state, stipulated that in the event the site is abandoned the property reverts to his heirs. It is asserted that the conditions are a matter of record. The property is in the business section, covers an entire block and is valuable.

CHANGE OF LIFE.

Some Sensible Advice to Women by Mrs. E. Sailer.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—When I passed through what is known as 'change of life,' I had two years' suffering,—sudden heat, and as quick chills would pass over me; my appetite was variable and I never could tell for a day at a time how I would feel the next day. Five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound changed all that, my days became days of health, and I have enjoyed every day since—now six years.

MRS. E. SAILER,
President German Relief Association,
Los Angeles, Cal.

"We have used considerable of your Vegetable Compound in our charitable work, as we find that to restore a poor mother to health so she can support herself and those dependent upon her, if such there be, is truer charity than to give other aid. You have my hearty endorsement, for you have proven yourself a true friend to suffering women."—Mrs. E. Sailer, 756 1/2 Hill St., Los Angeles, Cal.—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

No other person can give such helpful advice to women who are sick as can Mrs. Pinkham, for no other has had such great experience—her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice free—if you are sick write her—you are foolish if you don't.

Beauty is Health.

Walnut Lake, Ark., June 5, 1900.
I thank you for the benefit I received from your advice and the Wine of Cardui I took in my terrible condition. My life was no pleasure to me at all and I was of no use to anybody. After receiving your advice and medicine I commenced taking it and began immediately to improve. The pains left me and the menses, which came at the correct time, continued three days. I have gained strength and my weight has increased. My husband says the medicine has made me better looking than ever before.
Mrs. LIZZIE MANNELL.

Womanly health means bright eyes, rosy cheeks, clear complexion and elasticity of form. This is the youth unmeasured by years—the beauty of perfect womanhood. Beautiful women are happier and get more out of life than their sisters whose faces indicate suffering. Wine of Cardui made Mrs. Mannell "better looking" and infinitely happier because it cured her of those terrible pains. But she is no exception.

WINE OF CARDUI

is giving thousands of women health, beauty and freedom from the dragging pains which made their lives so miserable. 'Wan faces, haggard eyes and emaciated forms are the results of suffering. What suffering can compare with the torture of irregular menstruation, leucorrhoea and falling of the womb! Beauty flees quickly before the ravages of such disease. The sharp pains of falling of the womb deepen the crow tracks in the face. Menstrual irregularities rob the eye of its fire and the complexion of its transparency. Leucorrhoea drains the body of its strength, but Wine of Cardui restores the natural beauty, brightens the eye, clears the complexion, rounds out the figure and brings back the vigor of health. Every druggist in this city handles $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

FIGHT RAILROAD COMBINE

Governor of Minnesota Sends for Attorney General.

MONTANA PLANS FOR ACTION.

Statute There Same as in Other States and Officials Believe It Is Applicable
—Other States Act—Attack Forges in Earnest.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 20.—Governor Van Sant has sent a special messenger to find Attorney General Douglas in the northern Minnesota woods and request him to return to the city, so that a consultation may be held with regard to the railway situation. Governor Van Sant is determined not to have a consolidation or combine between the Northern Pacific and Great Northern or any other competing lines in the state. It is expected that the fight will be taken up in all the northwestern states, several of which have laws similar to Minnesota, prohibiting the consolidation of parallel and competing lines of railroads. The laws of North Dakota, Montana and Washington are said to be identical with those of Minnesota.

Montana Will Take Action.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 20.—The constitution of Montana absolutely prohibits the consolidation of parallel or competing lines of railroads. In an interview Governor Toole said he had not given the subject of the amalgamation of three lines that do business in Montana sufficient consideration as yet to express an opinion upon what action he would take. "I expect to have something to say upon the subject in a few days," he said.

Governor Rogers Undecided.

Olympia, Wash., Nov. 20.—It was rumored here that Governor Rogers was considering the question of calling an extra session of the legislature to act in the matter of the proposed consolidation of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads. The governor's only reply to a query on the subject was: "I have nothing to say."

Thinks Idaho Law Deficient.

Boise, Idaho, Nov. 20.—Governor Hunt, in the course of an interview on the action of the Minnesota governor, said he endorsed it, and would take the same action, except for the fact that practically all of Idaho's business was interstate and not local, and, therefore, the state could not reach the case.

PRACTICAL EDUCATION

The University of Chicago has opened a department of commerce and education, and a course of lectures by Chicago business men is one of the attractive features for the winter. The department is so practical that many young men are deserting the high school to enter, believing that they can be better prepared for business life by a course of special training than in the public schools.

It is gratifying to note that the demand for a practical education for the masses, is at last being recognized. While it is argued that a college education is helpful to any young man, the fact remains that 99 per cent. of the young men throughout the country never graduate from a college and 95 per cent. of them never own a high school diploma.

Educators and theorists may deplore these conditions, they are simply cold stubborn facts, and like a great many other things in this matter-of-fact world, they should be met with common sense.

The great mass of young manhood, that in a few years are to take the places of older men, in every department of commerce and industry, have neither the opportunity, the time, nor the disposition to take up a college course. It is just as well for the success of these various enterprises that these conditions exist, for aside from the semi-professions such as electrical and civil engineering and a very few others of this class, the time spent in college can be spent to much better advantage in the haunts of trade and business.

Young men are discovering for themselves that after mastering the common branches of a literary course that a practical business education can only be completed in the busy school of active life, and that chances for winning are largely determined by the hard discipline that comes to a boy at an age when he is willing to submit to the dictation of superiors who have neither the time nor the disposition to argue a point.

When a boy graduates from a commercial college he possesses a knowledge of penmanship and bookkeeping. He has been taught neatness, promptness, and a lot of practical theories concerning business, that can be readily applied and adapted to every-day work in the business world. The same is true of telegraphy, manual training, and all of the trades and industries that are taught in these practical schools.

At the age of 17 or 18 he is ready to enter the intermediate department of some store or workshop, and if he is a close student, and many boys are under the spur of responsibility, by the time he is 21, he is ready to graduate with a diploma that means more to him than a school rating.

If his time had been spent in college with the same ambition to prepare himself for the business or industrial world, he would be ready to enter the intermediate department at 25 with a head full of theories about finance and economic questions, and at an age when nobody wants him as a boy at $5.00 a week, and he would feel insulted if they did.

He may be cultured, a good football player, possessing mental equipment that is a source of satisfaction and enjoyment, but he has passed the age and opportunity for acquiring a practical business education. The professions and semi-professions are left to him, and if he decides to enter these channels, his time in college has been well spent.

The conditions that exist in life are not always ideal. The world would be better if every man and woman in it practiced morality, and better still, if Christianity was the main spring of action.

Humanity would be cast in a finer mould, if everybody liked flowers, and music, and if the finer sensibilities absorbed the gross and uninviting.

It would be an ideal world from an ethical standpoint, if everybody was cultured and if 99 per cent. of the people instead of one per cent., were the possessors of a college diploma. But the world is not ideal in any of these respects, and in all probability never will be. The average mortal, and that means the great mass of humanity, is not long in discovering the conditions, and adapting himself to them. With an ambition to work out individual destiny the struggle is on.

Our boys and girls are entitled, not the few, but the many, to the most practical foundation for active life that the schools can furnish, and every effort along these lines should be encouraged.

TWO KINDS OF PATRIOTISM

The Rev. E. F. Merriman and Prof. Benjamin Terry of the University of Chicago gave expression to their views on "Cosmopolitanism and Patriotism" at a session of the Baptist congress for the Discussion of Current Questions, held in the Central Baptist Church in West Forty-second street, yesterday afternoon.

Prof. Terry made a plea for that love of country which does not blind the patriot to all distinction between right and wrong, even though he may find himself in a hopeless minority. He contrasted this kind of patriotism with the patriotism which consists, not so much in love of one's country, as in hatred of other nations. Prof. Terry blamed the press of this country and England for the increase of this kind of patriotism, which he considers false, saying that it has been fostered by attacks made against those who questioned the justice of the wars waged in South Africa and the Philippines.

Prof. Merriman defined "cosmopolitanism" as a spirit which has an equal interest in all places and peoples. He said that patriotism is love and loyalty to one's own country, and that it is not necessarily antagonistic to cosmopolitanism. He said that often extreme patriotism has led to deeds of cruelty, but cosmopolitanism never has, and that in the widening of our borders and the increasing intermingling of interests with all peoples cosmopolitanism is the true patriotism. —New York Sun.

This is the kind of doctrine that has caused more mischief in the minds of intelligent people during the past two or three years than all other sources combined. It amounts to an ethical argument against what this class of writers term expression, or the unjust acquisition of territory.

Professor Terry talks about the war in the Philippines, failing to recognize the fact that no war has ever been declared, and that the quelling of the rebellion is in the interests of civilization. It is safe to say that the Professor was in sympathy with the class of educators who caused the administration so much annoyance at the close of the war with Spain.

Professor Merriman talks about cosmopolitanism as a distinctive virtue one grade higher than patriotism. An ideal theory, but like many other theories, impractical. Carried to its final conclusion it means, that American patriotism must adapt itself to the world's conditions, and that the great brotherhood of man must be so absorbing that the car of progress will be made to stand still for a few generations, while the old world catches up.

The American people are not ready to endorse the doctrine. They believe in the old Scripture teaching that a man who fails to care for his own household, is worse than an infidel.

The war with Spain was a civilizer, and when Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines are redeemed, it will be discovered that a bond of Christian brotherhood has been established, and back of it all, the big brother on American soil has been inspired by patriotism of the Christian type.

The war in South Africa is a Christianizer, and when the Boer is redeemed from fanaticism and barbarism, he will be a part of the great brotherhood that civilization is developing and uniting, at a pace never known before.

Call it cosmopolitanism, if there is anything fascinating in the name. It will detract nothing from patriotism, which in its highest sense is sacred. Neither will it interfere with Christian brotherhood, which in its final analysis, is the highest ideal of manhood.

Christian patriotism has made America a tower of strength, and every year there comes to her shores an army of refugees from almost every land under the sun, to enjoy the benefits of this free land, and to touch elbows with a common brotherhood, God, Home and Country is the nation's watchword, short and terse, but full of import.

This is an off-year for Kansas. Carrie Nation has deserted the state, the new political party is out of a job, and the people are compelled to take up other amusements. The latest is a hypnotist at Kansas City by the name of Carl Athens. Carl is weary of hard work and so he has permitted himself to be hypnotized, and buried for a week, while he takes a rest. He is supplied with a breathing tube, and if he attains his ambition Kansas will have another curio.

Bridgeport, Connecticut, capitalists have become enthusiastic over a flying machine, and a factory with a day and night shift is turning out a flock of these new vehicles. The inventor proposes to put them on the market in six months at $2,000 each. With automobiles flying through the country at a rate of a mile a minute, and the air full of flying machines, the populace will be obliged to take to the woods and get shot for deer.

Mr. Hearst of Yellow Journal fame, is having a lively experience in San Francisco. His paper in that city, the "Examiner," has been boycotted, and the business has fallen off very materially. Trouble is waiting for him in Chicago and his New York paper is not the most prosperous. Mr. Hearst is realizing that public sentiment has much to do with newspaper prosperity.

Joseph Cox, of Wichita, Kansas, has lost his squaw wife because he refused to keep sober. No divorce was requested. She simply took her blanket and fled. Joseph and David can console each other. Joseph preserves a memory, while David has a few hatchets as a gentle reminder of Carrie in the days when she was vigorous.

Admiral Schley is bankrupt. The savings of a life time—some $20,000—have been spent in vindicating his honor before a court of inquiry, and he retires from active service as a pensioner of the navy. This last chapter in the brilliant history of Santigao has left a stain, that time will not soon erase.

Governor Van Sant, of Minnesota, will make an effort to prevent the consolidation of the Northern and Canadian Pacific railways. Harriman and Hill are the promoters, and the deal involves $400,000,000 in stock.

The Arizona attorney who decided that a homestead title was defective, unless signed by the wife of the president, deserves promotion. He should be given a portfolio in Oklahoma.

President Roosevelt will share southern hospitality at Charleston on December 2nd. The Booker T. Washington event seems to have died a natural death.

Fifty love letters a day drove Henry Brown of New York to insanity. The girl escaped but she has an accumulation of 1,800 letters to console her.

PRESS COMMENT

Deloit Free Press: Perhaps Editor Wilder prediction that unless all of the republicans of the state don't play in Governor La Follette's yard next summer there are a whole lot of voters who on't lay in the republican yard, is in the interest of "harmony." Editor Wilder being an impassioned lover of harmony, when he "pitches the tune."

Belle Plaine Defender: "Horseless carriages, wireless telegraphy, smokeless powder, horseless cattle, seedless raisins and brainless jades have long been the vogue, but this year the farmers all over the country and they have raised earless corn."

You are right Mr. Press, and the Central also stands for both Spooner and Quarles, though the heavens fall. Senators Spooner and Quarles are representatives which any state can be proud of, and this paper, in company with its friend at the north, takes great pride in standing by its insoluble representatives. Spooner first, Quarles next. The devil and hades take the hindmost.—Wausau Central Wisconsin.

Rice Lake Leader: As the La Follette faction seems determined to ostracize every man who does not sneeze when the governor takes snuff, the easiest way to settle with them is to get a new governor.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Former Governor Hoard has had considerable experience in politics in this state and it is worthy of attention when he gives it as his opinion that "La Follette will be re-nominated and elected and these land-marked stalwarts will be heard declaring they were for him all the time. And that will not choke them either."

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: The announcement that Senator John C. Spooner is likely to be called to fill one of the vacancies on the committee on foreign relations, directs attention once more to the fact that Wisconsin is fortunate in having secured so distinguished and so able a representative in the upper branch of congress. Every honor bestowed on Senator Spooner brings new laurels to the state of Wisconsin and enhances her prestige in the sisterhood of states. All this furnishes additional reason why he should be retained in his present position just as Senator Allison has been retained for a third of a century by Iowa.

Appleton Post: Next thing we know, the steamed Milwaukee Free Press will be squelching this paper by calling it the "Pfoot." "Hefty" argument, is the favorite one of the half-breeds.

Appleton Crescent: Says a rural editor: "Owing to the overcrowded condition of our columns, a number of births and deaths were unavoidably postponed this week."

Racine Journal: An exchange points out that under President Cleveland the government sold bonds to pay expenses, but under President Roosevelt it is buying bonds to reduce surplus.

Superior Telegram: It is largely the trusts and corporations who style reciprocity "deserting protection."

Baraboo Republic: If all the old-time republican leaders are wrong in the present controversy, how did it so often happen that they were right in times past, when they led a harmonious party to battle and to victory? Let the voter think carefully before determining to quit old and tried men and principles and follow off an orator and a brass band.

UNDER THE HAY

A farmer, who expected a load of hay, went down the road to look for it. He found an empty wagon, the hay in the ditch, and a small boy manfully trying to load it on again. "Come and have your dinner, Johnny, and load the hay afterward."

Johnny demurred. "Father wouldn't like it," he said.

The farmer insisted and the boy dined. "Now, my boy, you feel better and can work harder. Your father won't mind it," said the farmer after the meal.

"I'm afraid he will," said Johnny. "Where is your father?" asked the host.

"Under the hay," was the answer. —Chicago Post.

FOLLOWED

"Oh, I've had such a fright!" Esther said breathlessly as she came in.

"Really? Dear me!" I said. "What was it?" Esther laid her sketchbook on the table and threw off her cape.

"I've been followed by a man."

"He didn't catch you," I replied.

"Don't be silly," Esther replied. "I tell you he followed me. I'll never think of walking home so late again—alone."

"How did you know you were followed? Did you look around?"

"Of course I didn't; but a girl can tell when any one is following her."

"She can tell a policeman," I suggested. Esther reflected a moment as she drew off her gloves.

"Yes, of course," she said. "But the poor man wasn't really doing any harm, you know. So there was nothing to tell—really."

"Then why disturb yourself about him?"

"Oh, you can't understand how a girl feels," said Esther, looking a little annoyed.

"But," I said after a pause, "I thought you came home in a cab."

"From the Marble arch," said Esther. "I couldn't endure it any longer. I walked as fast as I could, and he walked just as fast. When I walked slowly to let him pass, he walked slowly too. Twice I crossed to the other side of the street. And—would you believe it—he crossed too. I simply had to take a cab."

"It was a close shave," I said—"very close shave indeed." Esther looked at me rather doubtfully.

"But—do you think he meant to do anything?" she asked.

"Well," I said, "I can hardly say, without knowing his previous career. Of course he might have been a highwayman, and, on the other hand—hello, Martin! Come in."

"I beg your pardon," said Martin, halting in the doorway. "I thought you were alone."

"All right," I said. "I was expecting you. You know my sister. We were just discussing the possibility—"

"George, don't," said Esther under her breath.

"The possibility," I continued, "of assault and battery and highway robbery upon an unattended young woman. What do you think about it?"

"That's rather curious," said Martin, sitting down. "Only this evening I have been—in a sense—protecting a female in distress. I was confronted by a problem, and I should like your opinion on it, Miss Matthews."

Martin looked at Esther, who turned slightly in her chair with an obviously assumed air of interest. I can never understand why Esther does not like Martin, though I am quite certain she doesn't.

"I spotted her," said Martin, "hurry along just in front of me. She was a lady, and I could see she was very uncomfortable at being out so late alone. It really distressed me to see her edging into the road to make way for polite and inoffensive people. When she heard a couple of men coming along singing, she almost ran, and then almost stood still to let them get in front of her. Now, there was a problem for me."

"I don't see that there was any problem at all," said Esther, turning her face a little more toward the fire away from Martin.

"Here was a girl," said Martin, "who was frightened though there was really nothing to be afraid of—so frightened that she was running backward and forward across the road whenever she saw any one within thirty yards. Doubtless she was a silly little goose. But she was a fellow creature, and as I was going in the same direction it was my obvious duty to assure her of safety. The problem was how to assure her. My first idea was to follow her until I saw her safely at home. But then it struck me that she wouldn't know I was behind, and so I should be doing her no good at all and giving myself a lot of trouble."

"You might," I suggested, "have called a cab and offered to give her a lift." Martin shook his head.

"No," said he, "that would never do. Do you think so, Miss Matthews?"

"I really don't know anything about it," said Esther.

"Well," said Martin, "this was my solution: I determined to address her respectfully—tell her I had noticed her embarrassment, assure her I was respectable—lived in a house and served on juries and all that—and offer to walk a dozen yards behind her until she reached her front door and then leave her without speaking. What do you think of that?"

"You didn't do it?" I said.

"No," said Martin. "Just as I had nearly overtaken her a lot of rowdy men came along, and she jumped into a cab. So I didn't bother myself any further."

"What did she look like?" asked Esther with her face still turned toward the fire.

"Oh, like a girl," said Martin, "just an ordinary girl—with one of those silly capes that girls wear."

"Anything like this?" I asked, picking up Esther's cape.

Martin looked at the cape, at Esther, whose face looked very red in the firelight; at the sketchbook on the table, and then at Esther again.

"I will say good night," said Esther, rising.

"Oh, but," stammered Martin, "you're not—"

"You gave me a dreadful fright," said Esther.

"But, my dear Miss Matthews, I was only anxious to do you a service."

It was to use; she swept out of the room.

The Best Cakes For Keeping.

The best cakes for keeping are the ordinary rich fruit cake, dried apple cake, English pound cake and old fashioned loaf cake, which you will find called election cake in some cookbooks. Never add nuts to any cake you plan to keep for some time. They will mold in a few weeks and ruin the cake entirely, says a culinary authority.

Notes From The Jewellers' Circular.

The jeweled button fastening on cardcases, pocketbooks, etc., remains a favorite.

The tendency to very soft or time worn tints in metals for tableware, vases and similar objects has been long apparent in silver.

The old fashioned combination of mother of pearl and silver is regaining favor for umbrella handles.

Souvenir cups in silver and in the new pure tin metal promise to make a good run this season.

Old fashioned candlesticks in many styles are now objects of value.

Combinations of green, yellow and red gold are decidedly the last word in jewelry.

Well Made Drawn Butter.

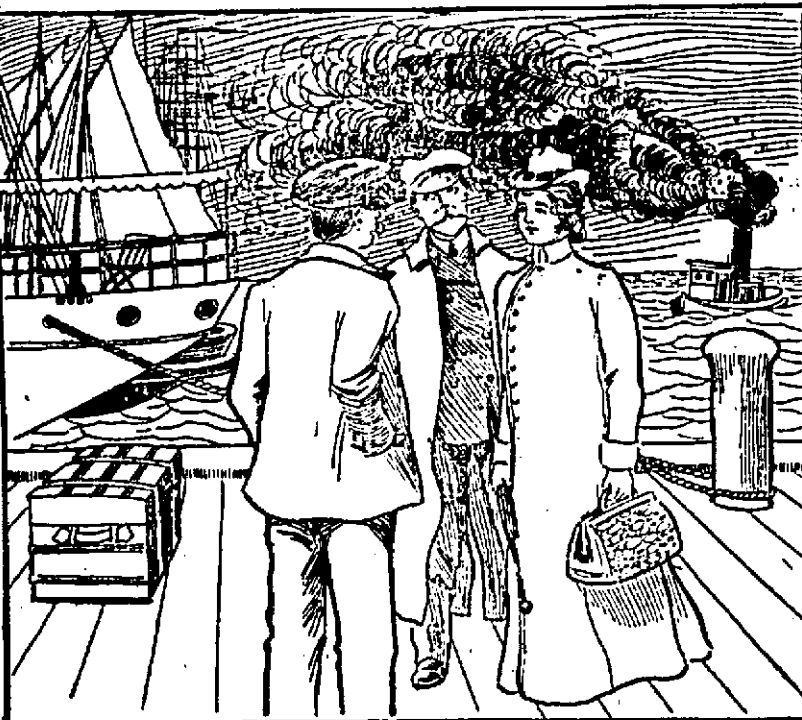

Drawn butter, so many times appearing in the final sentence of recipes along with the words "on a hot dish" and "serve immediately," should be made as follows: Divide three ounces of butter into small balls and sprinkle them with a liberal supply of flour. Put one-fourth of these butter balls in a saucepan and heat them, whisking them as they begin to melt. When they are reduced to a creamy smoothness, add the remaining number, one at a time, beating each thoroughly into the already melted butter. When all have been incorporated and the result is smooth and thick, add half a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, one tablespoonful of lemon juice and a dash of white pepper. This makes a particularly good sauce for broiled fish.

Celery Sauce For Chicken.

Make a white sauce of one tablespoonful of butter, one of flour and a cupful of white stock. Stir constantly until it thickens and is smooth; add salt, pepper and a tablespoonful of the minced tips of celery; stir until it boils and serve. This is excellent with chicken.

ORCHESTRA HAS DECIDED TO COME

BIG PITTSBURG BAND TO BE HERE ON DEC. 12.

Announcement of That Fact Made to Manager Myers Today.—It is One of the Largest and Best Known Organizations in This Country.—Seat Sale is On.

The Pittsburgh orchestra is coming. That is the decision of the manager communicated to Mr. Myers today. They have decided to include Janesville in their tour and will appear at the Grand on Thursday evening, Dec. 12.

Tickets are on sale at the Peoples' drug store now and it is hoped that the music loving people of this city will give this orchestra a reception commensurate with their reputation and ability.

Mr. Herbert is one of the first-known musicians in America. He has achieved a reputation quite as great as that of Sousa as a writer of popular music as is attested by the long list of his operatic successes.

The Pittsburgh orchestra is one of the three great permanent concert orchestras of the country. The other two are the Chicago orchestra, conducted by Theodore Thomas, and the Boston Symphony orchestra. It was founded by public spirited men of Pittsburgh by whom it is supported, and its incentive came when Andrew Carnegie built Carnegie Music hall in 1895.

In the first year fifty players were employed for twelve weeks and ten afternoon and ten evening concerts were given at a total expense of $25,000, nearly two-thirds of which was met by the guarantors.

The sixth regular season of the orchestra—just closed—continued twenty-one weeks; thirty-six concerts were given in Pittsburgh and forty-five in different cities of the country extending from Boston and New York to Ann Arbor.

The orchestra numbers seventy-three players, and the total cost of the season was $80,000; of this sum the public paid all but $18,000. No other concert organization has such a record.

Seventy public-spirited men of Pittsburgh guarantee the expenses of the orchestra which has become not only the pride of Pittsburgh, but a marked factor in the musical life of the country. The orchestra has earned its artistic position, as from the first all expenditures have been directed with the idea of securing the highest quality of performance.

The orchestra comes to Janesville with the hearty endorsement of all local musicians and musical societies and should be greeted by a crowded house.

The orchestra plays in Chicago December 9 and 10, Rockford, December 11, Janesville, December 12, Oshkosh, December 13, and Milwaukee, December 14, giving two concerts at the latter place.

Tupper-Kirk Wedding
Yesterday afternoon at one o'clock the Rev. J. T. Henderson of the Presbyterian church performed the ceremony that united Mr. Frank Tupper of New Castle, Placer Co., Cal. and Miss Grace Kirk of this city, as man and wife. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Mary E. Kirk, 264 Glenn street.

In the presence of about twenty-five relatives and intimate friends. The happy couple were unattended but all bore witness that their solemn vows were given. The rooms were prettily decorated with pink and white carnations which lent joy to the occasion. A choice wedding dinner was served to the contracting parties and their guests and enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Tupper took the 4:10 train for Chicago and will leave this evening for their future home in California. Mr. Tupper owns the Rocky Dell ranch, one of the best fruit ranches in New Castle, Cal., and is a prosperous young man. The bride is a young lady who had scores of friends in this city and for many years she has been in the employ of S. B. Heddies as bookkeeper. The many friends of the young couple wish them a long, happy life.

Cash System Adopted
Owing to the increased prices of all supplies, the increasing number of accounts, the difficulty of collecting the same, and the time and attention it requires to collect, we, the undersigned, laundries, have agreed to do only a cash business. After Dec. 1st, 1901, no bundle will be delivered unless paid for on or before the delivery of the same. Bundles not so paid for will be returned to the office. We feel positive that our patrons will find this more satisfactory to them as well as to us and trust that you will aid us in working for our mutual benefit. Five per cent discount will be allowed on coupon tickets from $1.00 to $3.00, payable in advance. By this method you can always keep posted as to the extent of your laundry work and prevent all misunderstandings with your laundryman.

PROGRESS OF BONINE TRIAL

Woman Accused of Murder Pleads
"Not Guilty."

HUSBAND SITS BESIDE HER.

Jury Not Completed When Court is
Washington, D. C., Adjourns for the Day—Attorneys Clash Over the Challenge of One Man.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—The trial of Mrs. Lola Ida Bonine, on indictment for the murder of the young census clerk, James Seymour Ayres, Jr., in the latter's room at the Kenmore Hotel in this city last May, is in progress before Justice Anderson in Criminal Court No. 1, and a jury had not been secured at the hour of adjournment. Mrs. Bonine appeared in the courtroom at 10:10 o'clock, accompanied by the veteran guard, James W. Springman. She walked in so quietly that her entrance was scarcely noted, and took a seat beside her husband, just back of her counsel and in front of her sister. She smiled as she greeted her sister, and the latter placed her arms gently about her as she sank into her seat. After the preliminaries of calling the names of witnesses and of jurors were disposed of, Mrs. Bonine was asked to stand and plead to the indictment. She listened calmly to the reading of the document, and when it was concluded pleaded "not guilty" in low but distinct tones.

After a brief statement of the case by Judge Anderson the examination of jurors was begun, and when the court, at 12:50 o'clock adjourned for the day, the panel was exhausted.

The first contention between opposing counsel arose in connection with the calling of a juror of the name of Smith, a colored man and an undertaker. He had stated that he had formed an opinion in the case, but that it was not so firmly fixed that it could not be modified by new testimony. Mr. Douglass of Mrs. Bonine's counsel challenged "for cause." District Attorney Gould antagonized the challenge, and Mr. Douglass addressed the court, pleading for liberal construction of the law because of the importance of the case.

The challenge, however, was overruled. Mr. Douglass noted an exception, the first of the trial, and then peremptorily challenged the juror, who was excused.

According to her story, which has been maintained throughout, she had chided young Ayres some time before his sudden death upon his drinking proclivities. They had not spoken until the night he was shot. About 2 a. m., she asserts, he came to the door of her room and saying he was going to leave the hotel the next day begged her to forget their differences. Pleading illness he returned to his own room, asking her to come to his room to talk over their quarrel.

In the statement made to the police it is asserted when she entered his apartment he held a revolver in his right hand and threatened her. She grappled with him and in the struggle the revolver was discharged. Ayres fell to the floor, dragging her with him, and then he relaxed his hold. He must have died a few moments later. She made her exit through a window and, descending the fire escape, entered a parlor and returned to her room.

A woman occupying the room next to that of Ayres heard the shots and faint calls for help. The prisoner asserts she cried for help during the fatal struggle. Two days later Mrs. Bonine of her own accord made her statement to the police.

The prosecution has assumed the ground that the woman was infatuated with her youthful friend and killed him in a fit of jealousy.

Mr. Bonine's business has taken him to all parts of the country, and he and his family have made their home east, west and south. Mrs. Bonine's maiden name was Lola Ida Henry, and she was born in Macon, Mo. Among the places where she has since lived are Hamilton, Mo.; Richmond, Kan.; Brunswick, Ga.; Sorano, Fla., and Columbus, Ohio. In Florida Mr. Bonine had an orange plantation, and while living there, acting upon her husband's advice, Mrs. Bonine practiced with a revolver and became an expert shot.

Owing to an accident Mr. Bonine's eyesight became impaired and fearing he would lose the use of his eyes his wife was making efforts to get a position in the postoffice department in order to support him and her two boys should he become incapacitated.

Stoker-Mayor Goes In for Economy.

Mayor Mulvihill, the stoker-mayor of Bridgeport, Conn., is instituting reforms in the municipal government. Previous administrations proposed to build a $450,000 city hall. The new executive says this would be a luxury and he has knocked out the plans and will patch up the old city hall. The mayor will also abolish the office of fire marshal, which he terms a sinecure. He hopes to abolish other offices which he says accomplish nothing.

Neglect Mapleson's Funeral.

The funeral of Colonel J. H. Mapleson, the operatic impresario, Monday at Highgate, a suburb of London, was a sadly neglected ceremony. A solitary carriage, containing a brother and a brother-in-law of the deceased, followed the hearse. Not one of the great operatic artists either attended or sent a floral token, and only a few private and family friends were present at the interment in Highgate cemetery.

Sleeps for Two Weeks.
Peoria, Ill., Nov. 20.—James A. Harris, aged 67 years, a potter by trade and father of ten children, went to sleep on the morning of Nov. 7 and all efforts to awaken him have so far proved unavailing. He has been kept alive by milk and wine, which have been forced down his throat. His family and the attending physicians are at a loss to understand the case, which evinces symptoms of hemorrhage of the brain. Harris recently moved to Peoria from Orange Prairie, Ill.

Firemen Injured in Blaze.
St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 20.—Fire completely gutted the five-story brick building at the corner of Ninth and Wabasha streets, entailing a loss estimated at $100,000. The upper stories were used as a warehouse by the People's Storage Company and were filled mostly with household furniture. Early in the progress of the fire there was an explosion of gasoline, which fortunately was without fatal results. A number of firemen received slight injuries.

Three Skaters Drowned.
Duluth, Minn., Nov. 20.—Belle Woods, aged 25; Charles P. Vallency, aged 26, and Stanley McLeod, aged 21, skated into an airhole in St. Louis bay about 10 o'clock p. m. and were drowned. Efforts to save them by the few persons in the vicinity were futile. The descendants were clerks in the Marshall-Wells Hardware company. It is said McLeod and Miss Woods were engaged to be married. The bodies have not yet been recovered.

Anti-Negro Bill Defeated.
Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 20.—A bill by T. W. Hardwick seeking to disfranchise negro votes in this state was defeated in the house by a vote of 113 to 17. Mr. Hardwick made an eloquent speech in favor of his measure, taking the stand that the time had now come for Georgia to get in line with other southern states in disfranchising the illiterate negro vote. The governor has expressed himself in favor of a qualified ballot.

Farmers' Wives Fight Duel.
Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 20.—As the result of a quarrel between Mrs. Chas. De Reamer and Mrs. Arthur Higgins wives of farmers of Lansing township, a duel with revolvers was fought at a lonely spot on Cayuga lake. Mrs. De Reamer was found bleeding from a wound in her hand and Mrs. Higgins was standing near by with a pistol. Both women refused to say anything about the affair. A second pistol lay on the sand.

BE CONSISTENT
Marquette Eagle, "Stalwart Rep.": "Evil to him who thinks evil," is an old adage as applicable sometimes to political questions as it is to morals generally. The Eagle has quite a large exchange list and among the newspapers received are a few who advocate the cause of the present governor of Wisconsin and his renomination to the office that he now holds. Among them all there is not one that does not regularly or has not at least one or more times impugned the motives of the papers that do not agree with it politically. The La Follette papers carry the idea that they think in themselves alone repose all virtue there is. Everyone who does not agree with them is supposed to be bought up by body and soul. Their charges of this character have been both general and specific and few of the better class of papers not agreeing with them have escaped criticism. There is something wrong with human nature when any considerable portion of the people think all the others are rascals and devoid of principle. Fortunately, the number of La Follette papers in the state at the present time is limited and their wild charges fall harmless on the newspapers which stand for principle and for the best interests of the republican party and of the state at large.

FOR A BABY OF THIS SIZE

Or a baby of any size, when suffering from simple fevers, coated tongue, constipation, or any trouble arising from the stomach, the purest, safest and best remedy is LAXAKOLA, the great tonic laxative.

Mothers, watch your children carefully. Their health, perhaps their lives, depend on keeping their bowels regular. Many parents make a fatal mistake by giving their little children the old-fashioned, violent purgatives which are sickening and gripping, and are therefore not only unpleasant, but dangerous. Make no mistake, give them

It does not gripe nor irritate. It is a pure, gentle, speedy and painless liquid laxative. It is not only a sure laxative, but it contains valuable tonic properties which act upon the bowels, tone up the entire system and purify the blood.

A few drops can be given with safety to very young babies, and it will often relieve colic by expelling the wind and gas that cause it. It will aid digestion, relieve restlessness, assist nature and induce sleep.

For constipation, simple fevers, coated tongue, or any infantile troubles arising from a disordered condition of the stomach it is invaluable. Great relief is experienced when administered to young children suffering from diarrhoea, accompanied with white or green evacuations, as LAXAKOLA neutralizes the acidity of the bowels and carries out the cause of the fermentation.

Blotched, sallow, unwholesome and mottled skin, with its consequent mortification, often leading to morbid seclusion and aversion to society and friends, shows that your blood is bad. The only way to clear the complexion, and restore it to its normal, healthy, velvety condition is to cleanse out the entire system, purify the blood and remove the cause, and Laxakola does it, as well as acting directly on the bowels and assisting the perspiratory glands in throwing off impurities. It purifies the blood as an olive oil cleans the can, and your skin will not only be well but you will be well. At druggists, etc., and get. Send for free sample to LAXAKOLA CO., 132 Nassau Street, New York, or 325 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

Street Sprinkler Nuisance

A horse that was not sharp shod had no show on Milwaukee street bridge yesterday afternoon. The street sprinkling wagons has been out putting water on the streets, and the bridge was soon covered with a coat of ice. Near Al Smith's candy store is a place where the road slopes away from the car track and when a horse would strike this place down he would go. At least fifteen horses went down on the slippery bridge yesterday afternoon and one team hitched to a brewery wagon wrecked their harness. The street commissioner should see that the bridge is repaved in such a condition again.

Sullivan-Cohn Wedding

Miss Margaret Sullivan and John W. Cohn were married this morning at St. Patrick's church, the Rev. McGinnity, officiating. The young people are both well-known in this city and received hearty congratulations. They have gone on a honeymoon trip to Chicago and Milwaukee and will settle down to housekeeping at Waukegan, Ill.

NEWS OF THE CITY IN BRIEF

Franks tomorrow night. Palace rink Frank D. Corvill and Miss Edith Good, both of Willowdale, were united in marriage this afternoon at the Congregational church parsonage by Rev. Robert C. Denison. The young couple are well known in the neighborhood where they reside, and have numerous friends who wish them much joy.

According to the general agents of the express companies in the city there will be unusually large Christmas shipping this year, and agents suggest that citizens who may desire to have their gifts reach distant friends on time should place them in the hands of the express companies at the earliest possible time, not waiting until a week or a few days before Christmas.

The Sunset Bell

In Seoul, Korea, a bell is rung at sunset, and when the golden orb has sunk beneath the horizon every man must be safely housed. If a man should be found in the street after that time he is liable to be flogged as his punishment. — Young People's Weekly.
